LLECHWEDD

A PROUD HISTORY

Llechwedd is one of the world's most famous slate quarries, boasting almost 200 years' worth of slate extraction to date. Still an opencast working quarry to this day, Llechwedd was originally opened by John Whitehead Greaves in 1846, quickly marking it as the largest in the area, the most efficient in the industry, and an innovative example of quarrying methodology.

The chambering reached almost as low as sea level, along around 20 miles of underground tunnels; many of which are accessible to this day and can be explored safely on the Zip World Deep Mine Tour, Caverns adventure course, Bounce Below and Underground Golf.

From 1972, the underground chambers and tunnels of Llechwedd were opened to the public as a tourist attraction, and remain a much-loved piece of Welsh heritage to this day, with many miners and their families still living locally in Blaenau Ffestiniog.
